New Ocean used the rules engine, workflow manager, and integrations in the Decisions no-code automation platform to build a population health management wellness application to modernize legacy systems and automate anything and everything, unlocking growth and accelerating profitability, driving revenue increases from faster development and deployment of their client programs and reducing their data processing costs.

"We use Decisions extensively, and we always consider Decisions' role when we're building or architecting. Decisions has become an integral part of our platform due to our need for rapid scalability. If new clients want specific rules, Decisions gives us the infrastructure and framework to deliver, quickly and efficiently."
